WARNING: Climbing is a dangerous activity. You could be seriously injured or killed. Safety is your responsibility even if we give you totally lame and incorrect information in this guide.

The Mission Gorge online guide is broken into 4 sections to make downloading easier. That way you only need to download the sections you really need.

1. Overview Guide: gives an overview of the Gorge, lists climbs by rating, includes first ascent info and bolt replacement history.
2. Main Area: photos & descriptions of Main Wall and Lunch Rock area climbs.
3. Limbo Area : photos & descriptions of Limbo Area climbs.
4. Middle Earth : photos & descriptions of Middle Earth climbs.

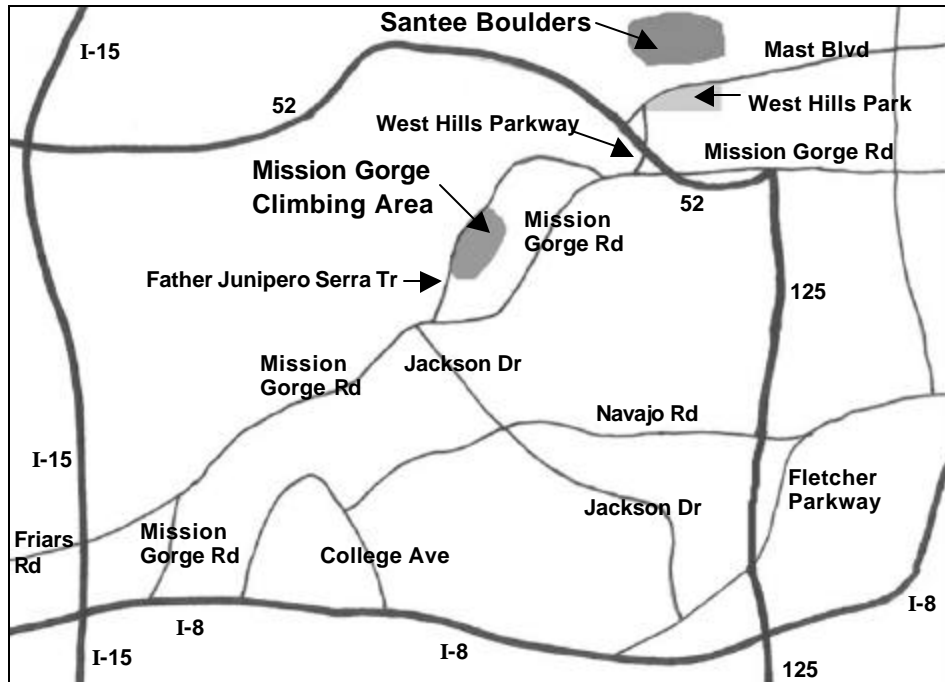

Types of Climbing: Sport Lead, Trad Lead, Toprope, Bouldering, Aid Practice

Number of Routes: 185

Ratings: 5.1 to 5.12+

Location: Mission Trails Regional Park, San Diego, California

How to get there: Mission Gorge lies within Mission Trails Regional Park. It can be accessed from Father Junipero Serra Trail. This one-way road must be entered from the south-west, off Mission Gorge Rd, near Jackson Dr.

Access Issues at Mission Gorge

Mission Gorge lies within Mission Trails Regional Park. The park has seen an increased emphasis on habitat protection and restoration in recent years. SDCC has been working with park rangers to restore vegetation and minimize further damage in the climbing area. Please stay on the trails, obey park rules, and climb with an awareness for the environment.

1. The west face of Kwaay Paay Peak is open to climbing but stay on the trails. (this includes the Main Wall, Limbo, and Middle Earth).
2. All other hillsides in the park are currently closed to climbing.
3. The Quarry along the river has been closed since 1999.
4. All boulders on the river side of Father Junipero Tr. except "Gray Giant" have been closed to climbing since June 2000.

Aid Climbing at Mission Gorge

Climbing began at Mission Gorge at least as far back as 1950. Many early Gorge climbers of the 1950's and 60's were aid climbers, and many of the routes put up during this era were aid lines. As free climbing skills improved during the 1970's and 80's, many of the old aid lines went free. Today all but 2 or 3 of Mission Gorge's routes are free climbs. Several of the old aid lines still offer excellent aid practice as long as you leave your hammer and pitons at home.

Routes that go free should only be Clean Aided using nuts, cams, and hand placed hooks. Below is a list of Gorge routes that offer great aid practice.

Route	Rating	Comments
Free Routes – Clean Aid Practice Only (No Hammers or Pitons)
Gallwas Crack to Rectum Roof	C 1	easy but fun
Trapeze	C 1	solid aid but awkward roof
The Wasp	C 2	several tricky placements
Wormtongue	C 2 or 3?	Recently went free, no hammers please.
Aid Routes – Clean Aid Practice Only (No Hammers or Pitons)
The Thumb	C 2	no hammers, pitons, or heads please. this route goes clean by almost everyone.
Misbegotten	C 3+	no hammers please. small nuts and hooks only. this climb joins the Free climb Masters of Defeat
Aid Routes – Hammers and Pitons OK
Tricks of the Trade	A3 or A3+	heads, rurs, hooks, the works

Bouldering at Mission Gorge

Most climbers do not come to Mission Gorge for the bouldering. While some boulder climbing can be found, other areas of San Diego are much better for this type of climbing.

In June 2000, MTRP rangers closed access to all boulders on the river side of Father Junipero Serra Trail. This was supposedly for environmental reasons. Though we do not agree with this closure, we urge you to follow the rules. SDCC is working with the rangers to try to get some of these riverside boulders reopened eventually. The boulders listed below are currently open for climbing.

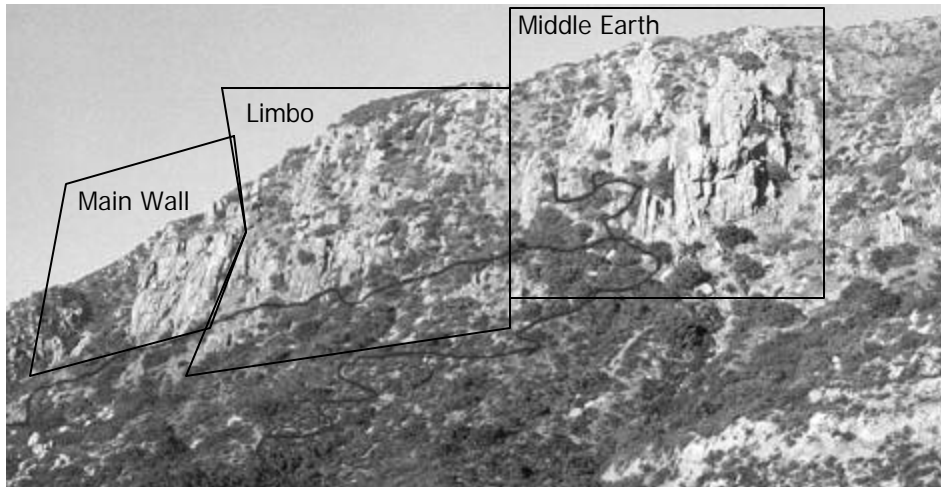

Orange Cube Boulder - about one hundred yards up the Middle Earth trail you come to a large boulder. It has several fun problems.

Gray Giant Boulder - just across the road from the start of the Middle Earth trail is a large boulder. this is the only riverside boulder currently open to bouldering. there are 3 or 4 overhanging climbs on the downhill side.

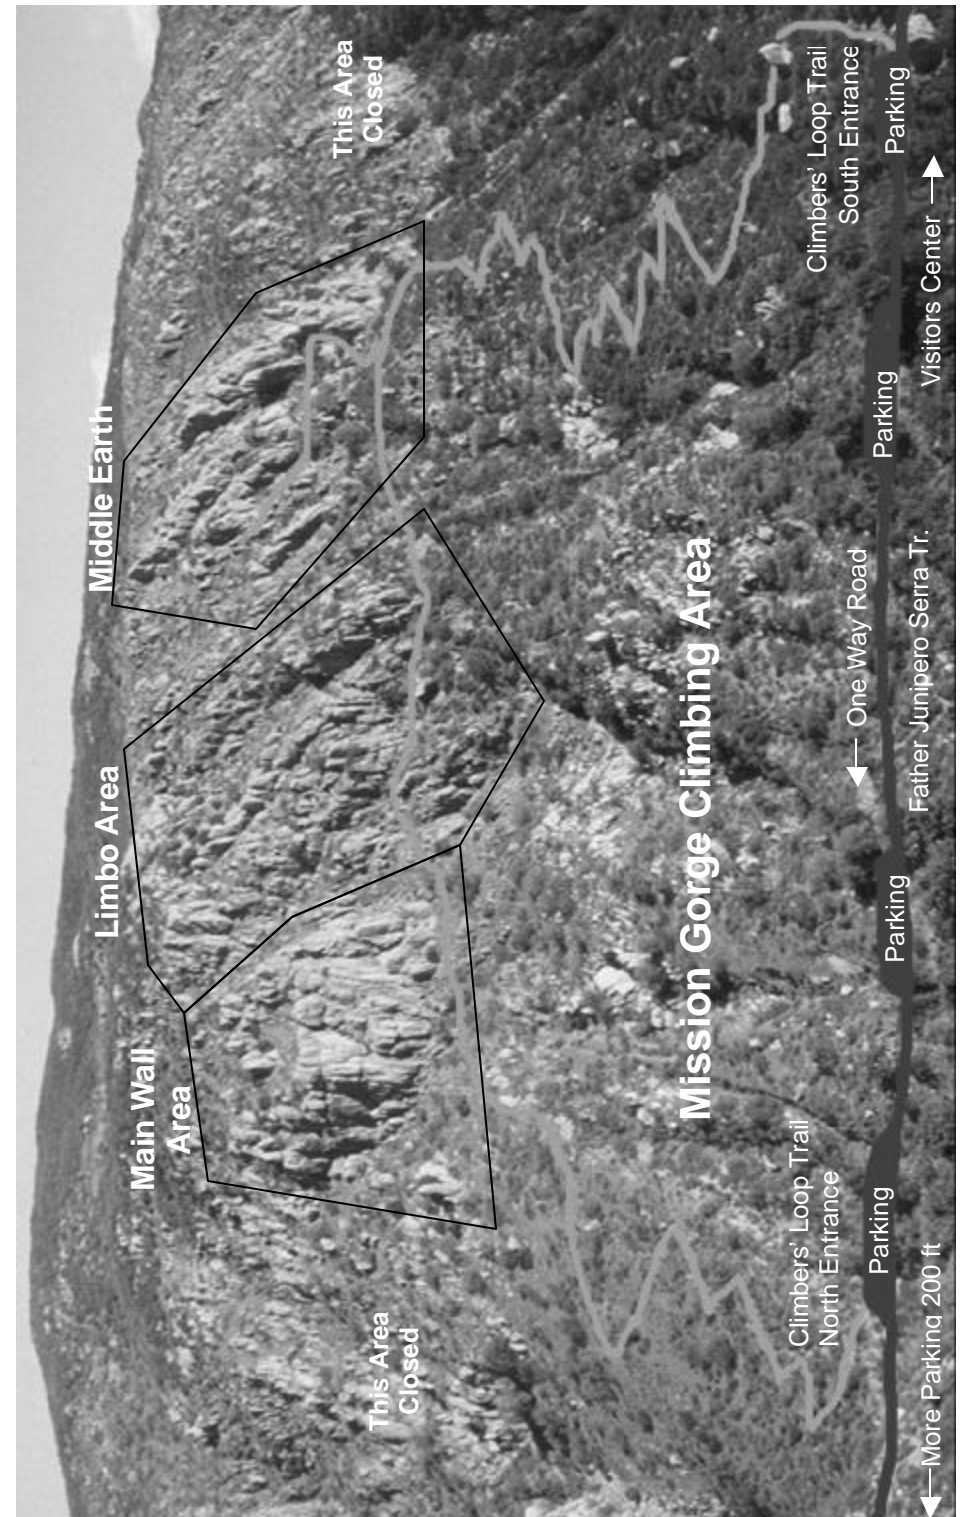

Chris Hubbard's Hobbit Bouldering Route - this route wanders thru much of the Middle Earth Area and is quite long.

Chris Hubbard has a nice bouldering guide titled "Mission Gorge Soloist" ©2001 It is currently not available commercially, but you may be able beg a copy from Chris if you run in to him on the rocks.

And finally, you can always make up your own boulder problems. There is lots of rock at Mission Gorge. Of course, Chris has probably already done it.

This guide uses the standard American rating system.

Routes by Rating

Ratings range from 5.0 (easiest) to 5.15 (hardest). Ratings of 5.10 and higher are further broken down into the standard a,b,c,d levels with "a" being easiest and "d" being hardest. There are currently no climbs rated 5.13 and higher at Mission Gorge.

Star ratings are also given to indicate Our Opinion of the quality of climbing on a route relative to other climbs at the Gorge. If you don't agree, feel free to let us know.

Ratings are merely an average of climbers opinions. A climb may feel easier or harder depending on your particular size and skills.
